EDUCATION

Ph.D. in Applied Economics, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, TX — Expected Spring 2027

M.S. in Applied Economics, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, TX — Expected Fall 2026

M.A. in Economics, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, TX — 2022

Bachelor of Business Administration, Kathmandu University, Nepal — 2017

RESEARCH FIELDS

International Trade | Industrial Organization | Production Economics | Labor Economics

I develop structural models and employ advanced econometrics, calibration, and causal inference to examine how policies affect trade, production, prices, employment, wages, and welfare across different market structures.

Papers Under Review

1. Gautam, U., and S. Devadoss. 2026. Does Market Conduct Matter? Evidence from Global Tree-Nut Trade. (Job Market Paper)
   Global tree-nut trade is modeled using structural gravity with endogenous markups and a representative multiproduct firm in each exporting country. Perfect, monopolistic, Bertrand, and Cournot competition are evaluated against observed trade shares, with Cournot providing the best fit. A free-trade counterfactual predicts substantial differences in trade reallocation and welfare across forms of market conduct. Results remain robust when allowing more symmetric firms per exporting country.
